(Release Date 2015)

Please see the description below of a documentary slated to be released next year, called “The Truth About Trees.”

The Truth about Trees

“The Truth About Trees is the first full-length documentary film series to explore the indispensable role of trees for all life on Earth. Like filmmaker Ross Spears' previous series, Appalachia, The Truth About Trees demonstrates that natural history and human history are utterly connected—that they are in fact part of the same story. The series is slated for release in 2015.

This group is making video histories of people who care for trees nationwide. This project sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the MacArthur Foundation, US Forest Service and Bartlett Tree Experts. Learn more here.
